The Next Vermonter.

The Vermonter, of the few established state magazines, appears to improve continually. It never falters in securing expression from those who are hopeful for a better Vermont and in appearance is rarely surpassed. The cover design of the current issue is a work of art, portraits from the studio of A. Allyn Bishop are reproduced, including a fine one of George H. Prouty, and all articles and illustrations are original with Vermont people. John M. Thomas, president of Middlebury College, offers in this issue a plan for educational improvement which should be widely considered. Prof. Marshall B. Cummings, state horticulturist, gives methods for successful apple growing. Supt. C. C. Jones of Fillmore Farms has a plan for immediate and general improvement of Vermont dairy herds. There is a story by Sadie Sargent Calder, a review of Vermont literary interests by Mrs. W. P. Smith, a reminiscence of "going fishing" by John E. Harris, a brief article on sunflowers and birds by Mrs. Eliza F. Miller, and another of the "letters" from "Edgell" to the absent Vermonter. The Van Ness house, old and new, gets favorable mention in this most attractive issue.

Death of Van Ness Worthen—List of School Teachers.

Van Ness Worthen died at his home here Saturday after an illness of three years of carcinoma during which he was a very great sufferer. Through it all he was patient and uncomplaining. Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, Rev. J. P. Schneider of the Congregational church and Rev. A. B. Enright of the Methodist church officiating. The bearers were six members of Washburn Lodge, No. 92, F. and A. M. of which the deceased was a much respected member. The interment was beside his father and mother at Plainfield where members of Wyoming Lodge, No. 30, F. and A. M. of North Montpelier acted as bearers. Mrs. Worthen, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Thurber went to Plainfield with the remains. Van Ness Worthen was born at Plainfield, Oct. 11, 1855. He was a son of Andrew Jackson and Hannah Woolson Worthen. He attended school at Waits River and West Fairlee. Early in life he learned the carriage painter's trade from Horace Sibley at West Fairlee for five or six years and later was in the big carriage factories at Amesbury, Mass. Then he engaged in hotel work at Montpelier and in the Avenue House at St. Johnsbury for two years. About 20 years ago he made his home at C. W. Thurber's at Danville and began work as a traveling salesman in the shoe business in which he successfully continued until illness caused his retirement about two years ago. Worthen was for four years a member of the retail grocery firm of Worthen and Gleason at St. Johnsbury. On June 9, 1908 he married Mrs. Lula White Brannan of West Derby who survives him. Besides his wife he leaves two sisters, Mrs. C. W. Thurber of Danville, and Mrs. A. H. Gleason of St. Johnsbury, a brother, William E. Worthen of Plainfield, and two step-daughters, Lillian A. and Marion E., of Danville. Mr. Worthen was a man who by honesty and kindness had won the respect of all who knew him. He was very popular among his townsmen as he was among those with whom he was acquainted in a business way.

The town schools will open April 24. The teachers are: West Danville, Carrie A. Clifford and May L. Wilson; Harvey, Clara F. Corson; South Danville, Susie Greenbanks, Joseph Hill, Toidor Hill, and Mrs. Moore's Mills, Margaret R. Coveny; Center, Vera M. Ayer; Danville, principal, George E. Kimball, Lillian T. Back to Nature.

A hen is not supposed to have much common sense or tact.

Yet every time she lays an egg she cackles forth the fact.

A rooster hasn't got a lot of intellect to show.

But none the less most roosters have enough good sense to crow.

The mule, the most despised of beasts, has a persistent way.

Of letting people know he's around by his insistent bray.

The busy little bees they buzz, bulls bellow and cows moo.

And watch-dogs bark, and ganders quack and doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and squawks; pigs squeal and robins sing.

And even serpents know enough to hiss before they sting.

But Man, the greatest masterpiece of that nature which devised.

Will often stop and hesitate before he'll ADVERTISE

WHELOCK.
